

Hack the Classroom!

Below you will find some creative ideas I have gathered from other teachers and ideas on Pinterest to hack my classroom.

Supplies Organization

Are you a marker freak like me? Buy a plastic shoe organizer (Target and Amazon have some good ones). You can hang it over a door or ask your custodian to drill some hooks into the wall. If neither of these options work, you can invest in some heavy duty Command Hooks to hook the shoe organizer onto a wall or the back of a door. Use the pockets to organize your markers, pens, index cards, and other classroom materials.

Ask your local grocery store to donate strawberry boxes which fit perfectly into standard student desks. Students can use them as drawers to easily find their materials, keep things from falling out, and easily move from one desk to another.

Pencil Parking Spot

Students always losing their pencils? Make a pencil parking spot using a cut straw and duct tape. Place this on their desks for them to always have their pencil out and ready to use.
